Rexburg was recently ranked as the youngest city in America, with a median age of 22.3 years. As a result, education is emphasized here. It is the home of BYU-Idaho, the largest private university in Idaho with over 17,500 full-time students. Madison County also has two nationally recognized high schools with renowned academic, music, and sports programs. Both high schools have among the highest graduation rates in the state.
- Rexburg is the recreational hub of Eastern Idaho and is less than a 90 minute drive from Yellowstone National Park, Grand Teton National Park, Jackson Hole, Wyoming, two ski resorts, miles of groomed snowmobile paths, world class fly fishing streams, and numerous other scenic attractions. The area is rich with history and the opportunities for boating, whitewater rafting, swimming, fishing, hunting, hiking, and camping are limitless.

- Rexburg was recently ranked among the 100 safest cities in America, ranking number 11. Low cost housing is widely available. Rexburg is also home to the newly expanded Madison Memorial Hospital, the only non-critical access hospital in Idaho that is community owned and operated without taxpayer money.
